Foreword

When, late in 2015, Arts Council Malta launched its five-year strategy for the cultural and creative sectors, it declared that its overall vision was to place the arts and creativity at the heart of Malta's future. One of the strategic priorities to transform this vision into action was the development of a comprehensive research programme that builds on the legacy of other public research initiatives taken in recent years. As an evidence-based strategic organisation, Arts Council Malta, designs new programmes and initiatives on data and analysis of trends in the cultural sector. The third edition of the Cultural Participation Survey, initiated in 2000 by the National Statistics Office, reveals to what extent the arts do in fact form part of the lives of the Maltese people – and how we can increase public engagement with the arts and culture.

The 2016 survey, carried out in collaboration with the National Statistics Office and the Valletta 2018 Foundation, goes beyond previous studies by attempting to explore why people choose to participate – or not – in cultural activities by uncovering their attitudes, preferences and lifestyles. This data has also been used to profile audiences not only by demographic but also by psychographic (value-based) factors.

The findings from the survey assist in shaping future evidence-based policymaking and make the case for the value of culture. These results should inspire conversations in the public sphere and provide a new research base for exploration on this complex and ever-evolving subject matter.

The study itself was carried out with a gross sample of 1,500 respondents, 75 per cent of which participated. 38 interviewers were engaged for the data collection which was held in November 2016 through face-to-face interviews, a method which made for a higher response rate compared to 2011 as well as clarification of qualitative questions.

The survey subscribes to a wide definition of culture: from attendance to arts events, with data that can be compared to other international trends and cultural events that are unique to Maltese cultural life. While the 2011 survey was the first to touch upon digital cultural participation, this time round, the study included a greater focus on a wide range of online cultural activities, such as website design, blogging or browsing for information about the arts.

The wealth of facts, figures and data retrieved will allow us to paint a more accurate and reliable indication of how people in Malta engage with the arts, the meanings we attach to such activities and to what extent art and creativity are at the centre of our lives.

Methodology

The Cultural Participation Survey is a population survey whose objective was to provide an overview of several characteristics associated with cultural participation in Malta. Besides basic socio-demographic data, this survey sought to gather information on the following topics:

- ⑥ Internet usage for cultural purposes;
- ⑥ Reading, listening to music and hobbies;
- ⑥ Attendance to cultural events;
- ⑥ Participation in cultural activities;
- ⑥ Language preferences;
- ⑥ Awareness of the Valletta 2018 Foundation and other public cultural organisations.

Population coverage

For the purpose of this study, the 2011 Population and Housing Census was used to select a stratified random sampling frame for individuals aged 16 and over residing in private households in Malta and Gozo. The sample was based on the variables of sex, age group and district. The target population size for this survey amounted to 360,335 persons. The following tables illustrate the distribution by sex, age group and district of all the persons in the target population.

Data collection

The interviewing period ran between 26 October 2016 and 16 November 2016 and collected a net sample of 1,125 individual cases. The National Statistics Office (NSO) engaged a number of part-time interviewers for this survey, which was conducted by means of face-to-face interviews.

The gross sample was of 1,500 and the response was distributed as follows:

Response

The response rate for the survey was of 87%, a strong enough rate to produce reliable statistics and information.

Quality control

The questionnaire was designed in collaboration with Arts Council Malta and the Valletta 2018 Foundation. Interviewers conducting this survey were briefed beforehand.

After the data collection stage, the questionnaires were vetted for logical inconsistencies, audits were carried out after every step to ensure that the data collected was of good quality and to evaluate that there were no errors or bias. Before the data entry stage, all the questionnaires were vetted and checked to identify any illogical data. Any misleading data was verified with the household in question.

After the data was inputted, it was re-checked for errors and any missing information was imputed with a valid mathematical algorithm, after which the complete dataset was checked to see that trends were statistically valid.

Weights

The weights were prepared on the basis of sex, age and district or locality.

Post-stratification at one level was undertaken by means of these variables: sex, age group and district/ locality. By means of this process, the NSO could produce estimates on all the parameters of the target population at district/locality levels categorised according to sex and age. Also, by implementing this technique, weighting served to reduce the effect of non-response bias, which would tend to make estimates rather unreliable.

Errors

This survey was subject to two main sources of error, the sampling error and bias.

The sampling error occurs as a consequence of the sampling procedure adopted in a survey, and it is measured by the standard error. The table below illustrates estimated errors for a range of derived rates and the corresponding number of persons for which the rates are calculated.

Margin of error estimates		Eligible number of persons ('000s)
		20	40	60	80	100	150	200	250	300	350	360

	60	11.1%	7.8%	6.4%	5.5%	4.9%	4.5%	3.9%	3.5%	3.2%	3.0%	2.5%
	70	10.4%	7.3%	6.0%	5.2%	4.6%	4.2%	3.7%	3.3%	3.0%	2.8%	2.3%
	80	9.0%	6.4%	5.2%	4.5%	4.0%	3.7%	3.2%	2.9%	2.6%	2.4%	2.0%
	90	6.8%	4.8%	3.9%	3.4%	3.0%	2.8%	2.4%	2.1%	2.0%	1.8%	1.5%

The other error that was taken into consideration was bias, which is attributed mainly to human error. These errors are related to the interviewing process, imputations of missing data at the checking and the analysis stage and during the procedure applied to weighting. This kind of error cannot be quantified and must be kept in mind by the users of this data.

Occupation classification

The occupation variable was classified according to ISCO-08 (the 2008 version of the International Standard Classification of Occupations).

Labour status classifications

The current labour status collected for this survey was classified in the following categories:

- Employed: This category includes all persons who are either in paid employment (part-time or full-time), self-employed or unpaid family workers.
- Unemployed, seeking work: This category includes all non-employed persons who were actively seeking work for at least four months prior to the survey period, and who were available for work during the survey period.
- Student or trainee: This category includes all persons who are full-time students or trainees.
- Retired: This category includes persons who have left employment, especially on reaching pensionable age.

Education classifications

The individual's education status within this survey was collected using the ISCED classification:

- No schooling
- Pre-Primary
- Primary
- Special school for children with disability
- Secondary
- Post-Secondary or non-tertiary education
- Tertiary or higher education.

Chapter 1

Demographics and Lifestyle

This chapter will address:

- ② Demographics of the overall population;
- ② Lifestyle in terms of social and individual regular activities that are not considered cultural activities in the context of this survey;
- ② The degree to which health problems limited everyday activity.

Demographics

When looking at the demographics of the respondents, one can notice that the number of male respondents was slightly higher than females. The majority of the respondents (98.6%) were of Maltese nationality. Only 2.6% were non-Maltese (Table 3).

Table 4 shows that 13% of the respondents lived abroad for a year or longer, compared to the 87% who answered this question in the negative. The percentage of respondents who lived in Malta for 11 years and more is of 98.8% in contrast with the 0.8% who lived in Malta for 6 to 10 years and the 0.3% who lived in Malta for five years and less (Table 5).

When respondents were asked to grade their life satisfaction on a scale of 1 to 10, with 1 being dissatisfied and 10 satisfied, 32% chose level 8 (Table 6). When considering life satisfaction by sex (Table 6) percentages are almost equally distributed for both males and females on all scales.

Activities and engagements

Table 11.1 shows that 54% of respondents replied that they meet socially with immediate family on a daily or almost daily basis. This was followed by doing sports and physical exercise, at 23%. However, at 47%, doing sports and physical exercise also had the second highest percentage of those who said that they never engage in this type of activity. Table 11.1 shows that there was no significant discrepancy between males and females; however, males tend to meet socially with friends on a daily basis while females prefer to meet with immediate family members on a daily basis.

This chapter will address:

- ② Internet access by demographics in the 12 months preceding the survey
- ② Internet use for cultural purposes by demographics in the 12 months preceding the survey

Internet Access

Chart 14.1 shows that the majority of respondents (47%) have internet access both at home as well as at other places; this was followed by 27% stating that they only have access at home. 18% stated that they do not have any access at all. Females have a higher percentage of internet access at home and at other places (47%), while males have higher access only at home (29%) (Table 14.1). Table 14.2 shows the discrepancy between the two different age groups, with the younger age group having a very high percentage of internet access at home and other places, while the older age group have a higher percentage in the ‘no access at all’ and access ‘at home only’ categories.

Internet Use for Cultural Purposes

Note: This section includes only respondents with internet access

As can be seen from Chart 15.1, the most popular activity relating to the use of the internet is listening to music (70%). This was followed by reading newspaper articles at 66%. With reference to using the internet to search for information, the highest percentage was recorded when searching for information on a local cultural event, with 61%.

Chapter 3

Readership and Music

This chapter will address:

- ① Readership in the past 12 months in terms of frequency and preferred genres by demographics
- ② Music listening in the past 12 months in terms of frequency and preferred genres by demographics

Readership

Chart 16.1 shows that the majority of respondents, that is 56%, did not read any books in the 12 months preceding the survey, while only 9% read one whole book. 35% of respondents stated that they had read more than one book. Females read more than males, and younger people read more than the older age groups (Tables 16.2a and 16.2b). From Table 16.3 it is interesting to note that the district of Gozo has the highest percentage of respondents that do not read any books (69%).

Chapter 4

Attendance to Cultural Events and Venues

This chapter will address:

- Attendance to cultural events and venues in Malta in the past 12 months in terms of frequency by demographics
- Attendance to cultural events and venues in Malta in the past 12 months in terms of frequency by the degree to which health problems limited everyday activity
- Attitudes and perceptions of respondents who attended cultural events and venues in Malta in the past 12 months
- Attendance to cultural events and venues in terms of recency by demographics
- Attendance to local cultural events in terms of frequency by demographics
- Attitudes and perceptions of respondents who attend local cultural events every year
- Spend on entrance tickets to cultural events and venues, attendance to cultural events and venues abroad, and attendance with children

Attendance to cultural events and venues in Malta in the past 12 months 91% of respondents stated that they had attended at least one cultural event during the 12 months preceding the survey; only 9% stated that they had not attended any cultural events.

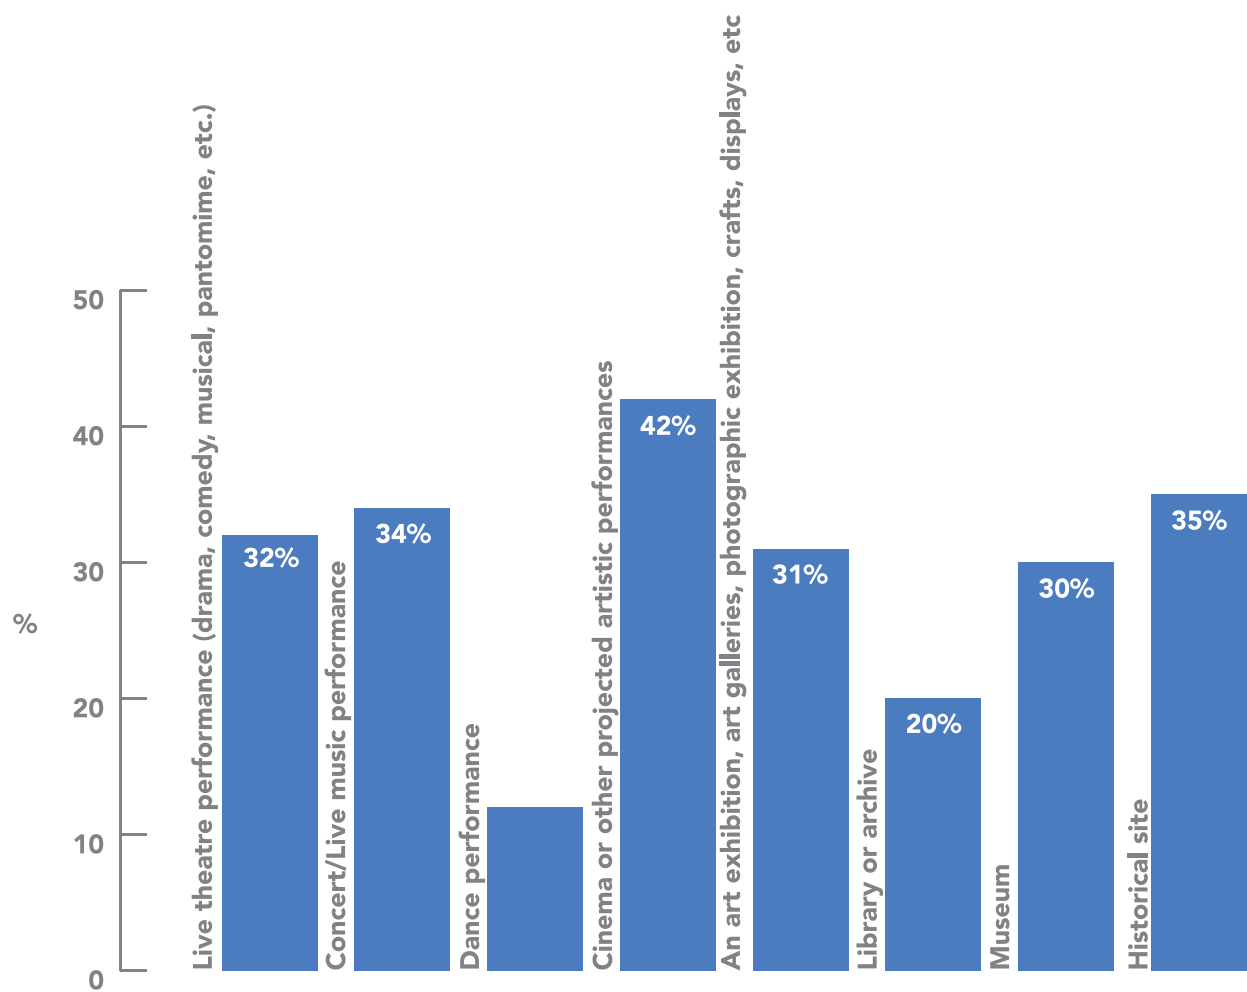

Chart 21.1 Attendance to cultural events and venues (in the past 12 months)

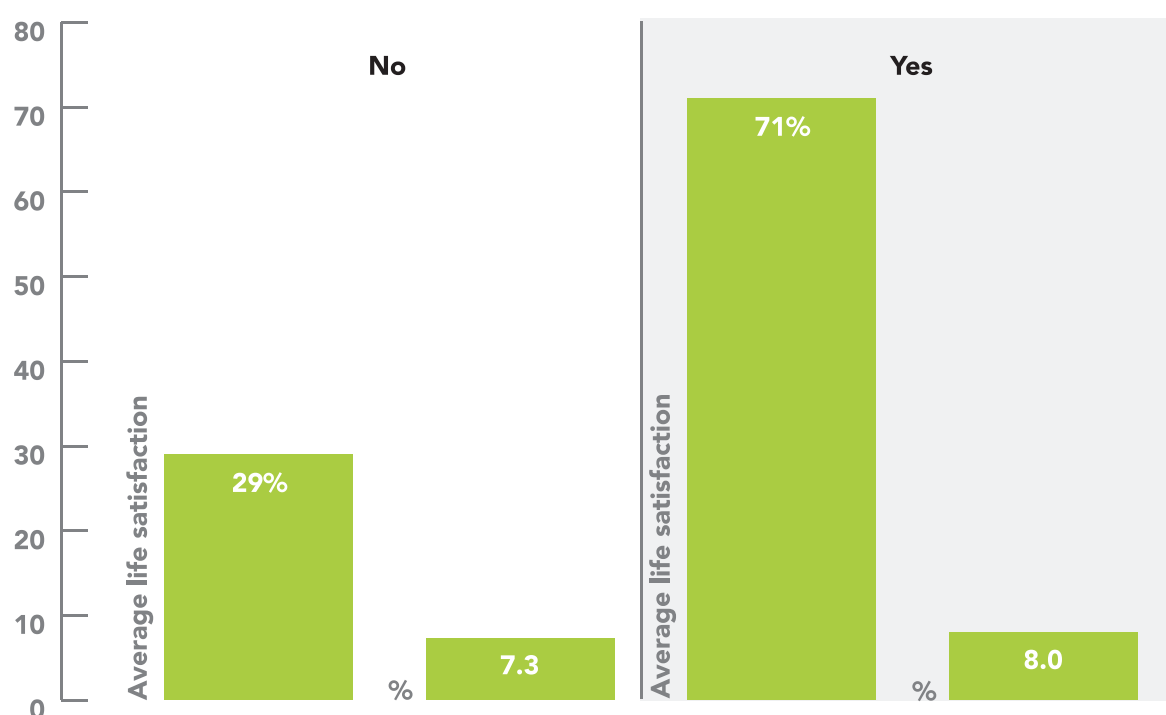

Attendance to the cinema or other projected artistic performances was the most popular activity among the respondents of the survey, with 42% saying that they had attended at least once in the 12 months preceding the survey. The next most popular were visits to historical sites and concert/live music performances, with 35% and 34% respectively (Chart 21.2).

When looking at chart 21.3, which compares the average life satisfaction of those who attended at least once in the last 12 months to the average life satisfaction of those who did not, it appears that the 71% who attended recorded an average life satisfaction of 8, while the 29% that did not attend had an average life satisfaction of 7.3. Tables 21.1 and 21.2 also show that females have a higher rate of attendance as do also respondents aged 16-44 years, who clearly have a higher rate of attendance when compared with the age group of 45 years and over.

Chart 21.2 Attendance to live performances and venues in Malta in the 12 months preceding the survey (attended at least once)

Chart 21.3 Percentages comparison between respondents who attended any of the live performances and venues in Malta at least once when compared to those who never attended any local performances, by life satisfaction

Attendance to cultural events and venues by health limitations

As can be seen from table 21.6, a higher percentage of respondents who were limited by a health problem said that they never attend any local performances. Those who were not limited by health problems had a lower percentage for all the other options; mainly they attended once, 2-3 times and four times or more.

Attendance to local cultural events

Chart 23.1 shows that, when it comes to local cultural events, the most popular event every year are the parish feasts, with a 67% attendance. These are followed by the Good Friday processions and passion plays with 52%. Females are more likely to attend these local cultural events; all events recorded a higher percentage of females attending every year, with the only exception being National and Public holidays like Mnarja, for which males recorded a higher percentage when asked if they attend every year (Table 23.1). From table 23.3 it is interesting to note that the attendance for these local cultural events every year is always highest in Gozo and Comino, with the highest percentage being that of 89.4% for parish feasts.

Spend on entrance tickets to cultural events and venues, attendance to cultural events and venues abroad, and attendance with children

When considering the amount spent on entrance tickets in the last 12 months before the survey, 25% held that they spent less than €50 and just 3% held that they spent €251 and over (Chart 24.1). When looking at the amount spent by sex, the percentages for all categories are distributed quite evenly for all options (Table 24.1). Table 24.2 shows that, when considering the most popular category - that is, under €50 – it is the 16-24 age group that have the highest percentage for this option with 40.0%, while persons aged 65+ have the lowest percentage, that is, 13.3%.

When abroad, most respondents visited historical sites and museums (Table 25.1). When considering the age groups and their attendance to the two most popular activities/sites, Table 25.2 shows that the 16-44 age group attended more historical sites with 24.0%, while the 45+ age group visited more museums with 23.6%. As can be seen in table 25.5, those respondents who were employed have a higher attendance percentage than those who were unemployed.

Chart 29.1 shows that, at 19%, crafts was the activity which registered the highest participation/ performance at least once in the three years preceding the survey; however, when one considers responses referring to a time period more than three years prior to the survey, it turns out that 28% participated or performed in a play or drama. As can be seen in table 29.2, the younger age group participate or perform more in almost all artistic activities.

Life satisfaction scores of respondents who participated/performed in cultural and artistic activities

When comparing the average life satisfaction of those who participated at least once in a cultural activity in their spare time in the 12 months preceding the survey, one can notice that even if the percentage of those participating is lower - 37% when compared with 63% who did not participate - the average life satisfaction for the former group is slightly higher. As can be seen in table 29.7, those who participated at least once in the 12 months preceding the survey have an average life satisfaction of 8.1, when compared with a 7.5 average life satisfaction for those who did not participate in any artistic activities during the same time period.

This chapter will address:

- 1 Language preferences by demographics
- 2 Attitudes and perceptions by demographics
- 3 Hobbies and use of the media by demographics

[ ] Under-represented (< 20 reporting individuals)

Most of the respondents held that they prefer to speak, listen to the radio, watch live theatre productions and write in the Maltese language. On the other hand, English was the preferred language when it comes to listening to music, reading and watching TV (Chart 33.1). Table 33.1 shows that more males than females prefer to use Maltese for speaking (74.6%) but then prefer English for listening to music.

The next statement which also elicited high agreement levels was 'I am happy to do my own things regardless of what others might think'. Here the percentage of male respondents was higher than for females, that is, 76% for males and 73.9% for females.

The statement 'private businesses should make donations or sponsorships to the arts and culture', gained an overall agreement percentage of 70.6%. However, for this statement, female respondents recorded a higher level of agreement; 74.8% of females and 65.8% of males selected tend to agree and strongly agree with this statement.

Table 34.1 shows that the highest percentage of disagreements was with the statement: 'I don't attend because I don't have anyone to go with', with an overall percentage of 70.9% who either strongly disagreed or tended to disagree. Here males had a significant higher percentage rate of disagreement with 78%, when compared to 64.5% of females.

The second and third highest disagreement levels were for the statements: 'I would be willing to volunteer time to support an arts and cultural organisation' and 'It is not convenient for me to travel to arts and cultural events', with an overall disagreement percentage of 53.2% and 51% respectively.

The most popular personal interest/hobby is clearly cookery/food and travel with 61.2%, followed by going to a coffee shop with 58%. From Table 36.1 one can notice that females have higher percentages than males for both activities. The 16-44 age group of respondents prefer sports and making/uploading of videos and music than the older age group (Table 36.2). It is also interesting to note from Table 36.4, that respondents with a post-secondary / non-tertiary education / tertiary or higher, recorded higher percentages for almost all personal interests/hobbies.
